Financial Support

Each student will receive a modest stipend per year and payment of fees and tuition for the first two years of study. It is expected that students will engage in research programs and receive intramural or extramural funding for research and studies in the subsequent years.

To facilitate the program's efforts to provide financial support for its students, all eligible students are expected to become residents of the State of California before beginning their second year of study. Please see [California Residency \[1\]](#) for more information.

For more information about funding opportunities available, visit the UCSF Graduate Division: [Financial Support \[2\]](#) webpage.
