Current Undergrads: Apply Now to INSIDE UCSF

Nov 21, 2019

The poster for the INSIDE UCSF event features a blue and orange color scheme. At the top left, the text "INSIDE UCSF" is displayed in large white and orange letters. Below this, a subtitle reads "Take an inside look at UCSF's Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing and Pharmacy, the Graduate Division and Physical Therapy." A central photograph shows a group of students and faculty members in a clinical setting, with one student examining a patient's arm. To the right of the photo, a text box describes the event as an exciting and informative event designed to introduce students to specific health science career paths, provide opportunities to meet students and faculty, and offer a chance to become inspired about future career possibilities. It notes that the program, including meals and travel, is offered at no cost to selected applicants. At the bottom left, a quote from a participant states, "Inside UCSF gave me a real impression of what a student can expect in terms of training and required curriculum." Below the quote, it lists activities such as student panels, interactive workshops, classroom experiences, and campus tours. The event dates, "APRIL 3-4, 2020", are prominently displayed at the bottom left. The UCSF logo and the motto "advancing health worldwide" are located at the bottom right.

The Inside UCSF 2020 application is now open! The UCSF Department of Physical Therapy is excited to invite you to apply and learn more about our Doctorate in Physical Therapy. This is an opportunity for current undergraduate students interested in an inside look at UCSF's graduate programs to attend a two-day event highlighting education and career possibilities. There is no cost to selected applicants.

INSIDE UCSF is offered by the UCSF Center for Science Education and Outreach (CSEO), whose programs assist first-generation, socio-economically disadvantaged, and English-language learners by helping them prepare for postsecondary education, pursue graduate and professional school opportunities, in addition to exposing them to various health careers.
